      • Will begin working on the Graduate School’s policy and guidelines for course modality
   b) Graduate Program Review Committee (GPRC)
      • The anthropology program was reviewed in 2019. The report indicated the need for review in 2021-2022 because of concerns related to
        1. Course scheduling and coordination
        2. Consideration of climate issues described in the review
        3. Updates to laboratories and increased space for archeological collections
      • Mark reached out to the program and received a response from the current program director. (Please review attachment that was included with the agenda.)
      • Mark, Tammi, and Margaret read the program's response and recommend against further action by GFGC at this time.
   c) Graduate Student Support Committee (GSSC)
      • Continuing the work of gathering information about program-specific graduate student handbooks and policies programs have in place to support students.
      • Continuing to explore ways to support graduate students via an institutional manual and/or website.
      • Working with the GPRC in how to support programs and students when lack of support is found during the review.
3) Committee representation updates
   • STS along with AMSEC co-submitted a budget proposal to request six new TA lines (https://bfp.wwu.edu/current-operating-budget-proposals?check_logged_in=1 Proposal AA-29, currently open for comment). These TAs would work alongside permanent technical staff to assist other students and faculty with collecting and analyzing data on a particular instrument or group of related instruments. The TAs would receive advanced training from STS and AMSEC staff then apply their training in support of courses and other researchers.
   • Benefits of proposal AA-29 for graduate students
     o 97% of proposed budget for TA salary and tuition waivers, remainder for consumables related to increased instrument use o unique and valuable skills for the TAs who hold these positions
     o more timely access to instruments and instrument training for all STEM graduate students
     o increased competitiveness on future external grant proposals related to instrumentation
